Talk About It:

Part of growing as a reader is learning how to think while you read. Ask each other questions before, during, and after reading:

- What was most important about what we just read?
- How did the characters change over time?
- What was your favorite part of that section?
- Did you read anything that might impact your life? How?
- Does this text remind you of something you have read, seen, or heard before? How?

Get Caught Reading:

Set an example by reading in public. Let everyone see you reading a newspaper or browsing through a novel on the beach or beside the pool. Liven up chore time or meal time by taking turns working while one person reads aloud a favorite book or an exciting new novel. Have fun!

Why should students read during the summer?

University of Tennessee, Knoxville, faculty members Richard Allington and Anne McGill-Franzen have completed a three-year study showing that students lose up to three months of learning every summer—skills they worked hard to acquire during the school year. However, the study showed a significantly higher level of reading achievement in students who took part in summer reading at home.

Allington compares the slide in reading ability to an athlete's fitness. "Just like hockey players lose some of their skills if they stay off their skates and off the ice for three months, children who do not read in the summer lose two to three months of reading development," Allington said.

Berkeley County School District Summer Reading

Rising 7th Graders

"Today a reader, tomorrow a leader." - American Journalist, Margaret Fuller

Theme: The Stories of a Culture

It's officially Summer! What are you reading?

The Themes

Many of the things students will read and write in Grade 7 ELA explore topics related to stories from other cultures and the ways in which those stories reflected the people who told them. Some of the books on these lists are more challenging than others, but all explore these themes through events (plot), characters, and conflicts.

Summer Reading Project

Consult with parents, teachers, and/or teacher librarians to choose one book from each list (fiction and informational) or other titles from each genre that fit the theme. All rising 7th grade GT students will read The Lightning Thief in addition to another title with the shared theme of stories from various cultures. With parent approval of the choices, students will read the two books over the summer. Each school will share rewards and expectations for when school starts in August.

These books and others like them are available not only in school libraries, but also in your public libraries and local book stores. Have a great summer and enjoy the magic of books!
