FOREWORD

These receipts were compiled into the Bradwell & Sons collection. It was digitized as part of the Berkeley County Library System's Oral History and Digital Project. Digitized images and data are uploaded by the University of South Carolina Digital Library staff. Due to COVID-19, the upload of this document has been delayed. Until such time as this is available through USC, this abbreviated (as in additional information found through research) version will be posted on the library's website. As soon as the original version is uploaded, the link will be updated.

Images of some of the items found in the customer orders can be found on pages 86-95.

*Bradwell & Sons did not close because their business was failing. The Revenue Act of 1940 permanently increased individual income tax rates in the United States, permanently increased corporate tax rates from 19% to 33% and temporarily increased most excise tax rates to 30-50%. The Bradwell brothers were not inclined to "work for the government." They closed the business soon after the The Revenue Act of 1940 was passed. The impact of the Santee Cooper Project was also a determining factor.

STRENGTH AND SPEED

United in the Spirit of the Republic

EXCESS STRENGTH for your heaviest hauling with speed for your widest hauling radius—this is what the Republic has wrought out in simplest construction. It accounts for the fact (testified to by a multitude of owners) that the Republic comes through where all other transportation fails. We are now producing 114 trucks a day, 23,000 this year, in the largest exclusive truck factory in the world.

5 Republic Sizes—A Truck for Every Need
 Republic Dispatch delivery with express body, canopy top & complete equipment, $895; solid panel body, $920; 1-ton express or stake body & bow top, $1155; 1½-ton chassis, $1375; 2-ton chassis, $1785; 3½-ton Dreadnaught, $2675.

THE REPUBLIC TRUCK MEANS ECONOMIC DELIVERIES

J. C. Bradwell Sons, who conduct a general store at Cross, S. C., have had a Republic one-ton truck in service since about the first of March.

All supplies are hauled from Moncks Corner to Cross, a distance of sixteen miles. Prior to the purchase of the truck mules were used. Since using the Republic truck they find that after deducting 25 per cent per year for depreciation and upkeep they make a net saving of over $1.50 per ton in hauling.

Remember these loads are hauled over all kinds of roads including mud, sand and rough roads. They make each trip on an average of less than 2 1-2 gallons of gasoline and less than one quart of oil to the one hundred miles. Far better results can be obtained over city streets.

THE STRONG RIGHT ARM OF REPUBLIC SERVICE

An important item to take into consideration when buying a motor truck is SERVICE. Without an adequate source of spare parts quickly available when needed; without an efficient organization of capable, conscientious men to aid and instruct the truck owner in the most economical ways of maintaining his truck equipment—without such vital co-operation, the best truck in the world is a questionable investment.

Our sole interest is in the sale and economic maintenance of Republic trucks. Should you purchase a Republic truck you will be a Republic booster as we will make sure that you are a satisfied customer.

Five Berkeley Brothers Do Half-million-dollar Business 'Back in Woods.'

PORTS AND TRUCKS KEY TO SUCCESS

Bradwell Wholesale Firm at Cross, 15 miles from Railroad, Serves 5 Counties.

Knows No Depression.

Four Trucks Can Transport 40,000 Pounds of Freight in One Load.

BRADWELL WAREHOUSE AT CROSS

2-C The News and Courier, Charleston, S. C. Sunday Morning, November 10.

1935. Cross, Nov. 9--Special: Only few maps of South Carolina show the tiny hamlet of Cross. Those that show it mark it only with a small dot. Yet at Cross, far from railroad, telephone, and electric service, is one of the largest business organizations of its kind in the state. At Cross, 'back in the woods,' with the nearest paved road ten miles away, the firm of J. C. Bradwell Sons, wholesale merchants, does a business approximating half a million dollars a year. The organization, without any of the facilities deemed essential by many businessmen, serves portions of five counties and handles a tremendous volume of merchandise. Cross is not on a state highway. It consists of little else than a retail store, a post office, (served by a star route from Moncks Corner), a school, several houses bordering the county road, and the warehouses of J. C. Bradwell Sons. 15 Miles from Telegraph. It is located in the western part of Berkeley County, fifteen miles from Moncks Corner, the nearest railroad and telegraph station. Yet, to the four warehouses of J. C. Bradwell Sons pour tons of merchandise daily. And from those warehouses trucks deliver merchandise to stores in Berkeley, Orangeburg, Williamsburg, Clarendon, and Dorchester counties. The success of the five Bradwell brothers in their country wholesale enterprise is due to their vision of the needs of their trading territory and to the efficiency of their organization. Few businessmen would have thought of establishing a wholesale concern in the country with the competition offered by city jobbers. The Bradwell brother, regardless of the handicaps, went into the wholesale business and made it a success. Through their own earlier experience as retailers, they saw the difficulty that country merchants had in obtaining merchandise quickly and cheaply, far from city jobbers, and with little or no railroad facilities. They were quick to realize the possibilities of the motor truck in overcoming the lack of railroad service. Quit Retail Business. The concern was begun in 1901 as a retail store by the father, J. C. Bradwell. Six sons entered the business as partners, and the firm was known as J. C. Bradwell & Sons. With the death of the elder Bradwell in 1916, the partners chose the present title for the name of their organization. The five brothers now comprising the firm are L. W. Bradwell, J. W. Bradwell, I. D. Bradwell, C. N. Bradwell, and D. L. Bradwell. After the death of the senior partner, the sons continued retailing. A few years later they realized the possibility of using motor transportation in serving their competitors direct from manufacturers and brokers. One of the brothers took to the road to solicit trade for the new venture. A few years' experience convinced them that the project was profitable and they determined to quit retailing. Their stock of merchandise was sold, the counters were removed from their store, additional warehouse space secured and J. C. Bradwell Sons became wholesalers. Three Like It in Nation. Jobbers all the way from Chicago to New Orleans; rice brokers from the Gulf and millers from the West--all say that the organization is one of the most unique in their experience. It is said there are only four such similar country wholesale concerns in the United States. None other exists in South Carolina. Practically all the Bradwell's transportation is done through the port of Charleston. The large majority of their merchandise is shipped into Charleston by water. Merchandise is loaded direct to a waiting truck which speeds it to Cross, from where it is distributed quickly to where needed. Little time is wasted by leaving commodities on wharves. Products are literally transferred from ships to merchants. Various commodities are shipped into Moncks Corner by the railroad in car-load lots. This, however, is but a small part of their transportation as compared to the water. Charleston Port Praised. The Bradwells praise the Charleston waterfront. They speak highly of the efficiency which their business is handled by Charleston shippers. Much of their transactions are handled directly with brokers and millers on the Pacific Coast. Tons of merchandise are shipped into Charleston by way of the Panama Canal. Four trucks care for the entire volume of business. There is a daily stream of traffic between Charleston and Cross, and on to scattered points. The four trucks are able to load forty thousand pounds of merchandise and transport it here from Charleston docks. The warehouses present a scene of intense activity at all times. Trucks roar in with the commodities from every part of the U.S.: flour from the west coast, sugar and rice from the Gulf, and canned goods from northern manufacturers. Goods are expertly unloaded and quickly store. Motors are hardly cooled before the trucks are freight-bound for the warehouse or returning to Charleston for goods stacked on wharves, for J. C. Bradwell Sons has never paid demurrage. There is little loss of time. Each partner has a definite duty. One handles the buying; another the selling. Others look after the orders, the shipping, and the bookkeeping. The firm is an excellent example of cooperative activity. There are no telephones in the offices of J. C. Bradwell Sons. No messenger boys enter with telegraphic market reports. Yet the members are always acquainted with commodity prices. They are always up on market conditions. The writer was talking to L. W. Bradwell recently regarding the depression. During the conversation, Mr. Bradwell made this statement: "You know, there was really no depression with us. Our business grew steadily during the entire period. Each year our volume of business was larger. We expect to sell more than a million dollars worth of merchandise. We can actually get more business than we have now. But we don't want it." "We are prepared to give good service on the volume we are now handling. We are not prepared for an increase, and would rather curb the amount of tons we handle, giving prompt service, that takes on more business we feel we can efficiently handle." It is this policy of efficiency that has built up a small county store in the back woods of Berkeley County, into a concern with annual sales of half a million dollars.

CROP LIENS

In the Southern States, particularly in the cotton, rice, and tobacco sections, the use of crop liens for short-time loans appears to be much greater than in other sections of the country. It is a common practice throughout the country for farmers to run up book accounts with local merchants during the spring and summer to be paid in the fall when the crops are sold. When this is done on any considerable scale the farmer probably pays more than bank interest under the guise of prices, and this is particularly true when he obligates himself to sell his crops to the creditor merchant.

In the South, this practice is carried to the extreme in the familiar "store-lien" system which holds many farmers in the cotton belt in a condition bordering on perpetual servitude. The custom is for the farmer to buy supplies from the local general store on credit for the year, agreeing to sell to the merchant his cotton crop in the fall, thereby canceling the debt. A crop lien is generally given, and the merchant often dictates the character and the amount of the planting.

Gentlemen:

We are indeed pleased to acknowledge receipt of your order placed through I. M. Koger & Co., consisting of

50 - 60# Tubs Bond Brand Shortening
60 - 1/45# Cans

which we are forwarding today and invoicing at 15¢ tierce basis.

During the past month we have been receiving so much business on this particular brand that really we haven't been able to forward orders as promptly as we would like to. Most of these orders have been from jobbers who were receiving repeat business on this brand, which would indicate that it has been giving wonderful satisfaction, and there is no reason why you should not have the same experience.

There is no reason why you should not be able to handle several times this quantity during the season, and we are going to look forward towards hearing from you in the very near future.

Assuring you that it is a pleasure to serve you, we are

Yours very truly,

J.C. Bradwell's Sons,
Cross, S. C.

Gentlemen:

Reference car of rice which you made offer to our Mr. Floyd on. The price quoted you by Mr. Floyd delivered, should have been quoted as F.o.b. Mill, and the mill advises that $3.45 F.o.b. Crowley is the best on this piece of rice, however Mr. Floyd has been dickering with them ever since, and says he will see you either tomorrow, or Monday sure. Mr. Floyd got tied up at the fair yesterday, and could not see you.

Yours very truly,

Auld & White, Inc.,

J.C. Bradwell's Son,
Cross, S.C.

Gentlemen:

Thanks for your offer on 1000 cases
#2 tomatoes, and we have sent same to our shippers
asking them to endeavor to confirm, and advise us.
Just as soon as we hear from them, we will wire you.
We expect to hear from them by Thursday or Friday.

Oh! yes! Mr. White, and Mr. Floyd will be down there December 21, for that hunt you all have talked about so long. You can look for them then, which date trust is satisfactory to you.

With best wishes, we are

Yours very truly,

Auld & White, Inc.,

THE BRADWELL BROTHERS

Courtesy of Claudette McCall

From left to right: Isaac, Louis, D. Lee “Flea,” and Ben Bradwell
(Not pictured) - John W. Bradwell and Capers N. Bradwell

The brothers are sitting on the steps of Louis Watson Bradwell’s House on Hwy. SC 6 in Cross.

The house was built in 1914.

Louis Watson Bradwell (1879-1968); John Wilson Bradwell (1883-1959);
Isaac Drayton Bradwell (1877-1964); Capers Neal Bradwell (1894-1991);
Daniel Lee Bradwell (1885-1969)

* J. Cecil Rourk (1937-2008) had saved the majority of the bills and receipts in a folder. His wife, Linda Coburn Rourk gave them to me. (Ramona L. Grimsley)
